M'lie Paula de Branco is the daughter of a French couple who were living in Brazil at the time of her birth. Her father, Rodriguere d' Oliverra de Branco, was one of the wealthiest men in Brazil, but suffering reverses, returned to Franco to preserve the remnants of his splendid fortune. To recover his fost estates, he entered extensively into the gambling operations of Monaco, and there lost all he had not parted with in Brazil. Like many another sufferer from the same cause, de Branco took his life rather than return and face the family his recklessness. M'ite Paula de Branco is the daughter many another sufferer from the same cause, de Brauco took his life rather than return and face the family his recklessness had rendered pennilese. This family consisted of the wife, Gabriella de Branco, an older daughter and a son, besidee Pauls, then a little girl of seven years. They were living in considerable style in Toulouse. THE WHEELING HISTORY. In this brief summary of Dr. Niles' career in Wheeling, reference has been omitted to his acquaintance with M'lle de Branco. When the young lady was recoving from the effects of the amesthetic in the dentist's office, she made some inconvention to the service of the same than the service of the same inconvention to the service of the nuity. He argues that it is strange that Mr. Trafford, after supporting her in a life of ease and luxury, and educating her as a lady, should cut her off with a mere begatelle, in his will. Much of the his-tory of Capt. Burnett's connection with the case was printed in the ISTALLIGENCES yesterday morning. An intimacy grew up between Dr. Niles and M'lle Paula, and one evening she left the Mount to come to the city, ostensibly to remain over night with one fections, and with him eloped, leaving her mother alone to battle with the world, her son, a young man, being a worthless, shiftless character, giving to gaming whenever he could scrape together a faw coins.

In this strait, Madame de Branco formed a discreditable alliance with a member of the French legation at Geneva, a man of whom her husband had been suspicious in his life. To this man the young Faula took such a dislike that her mother, with the aid of a Catholic priest, induced a wealthy and philanthropic Englishmon, resident at St. Julien, in Sa. you, not far from Geneva, to care for the place she went to Pittsburgh, where she was married by Rev. Dr. Nevin Woodside, one Sunday night at the stroke of 12, to Dr. Niles. Their history since that was briefly given in these columns not

Dr. Niles attempted to bribe a Catholic clergyman from here to go to Pittsburgh and marry him, but his offer was rejected with indignation and scorn.

Lack of space forbids any elaboration upon these strangely romantic details at this time. Doubtless, however, the case is destined to take up a good share of pub-lic attention before the matter is finally lic attention lost sight of. THE NORTH WHEELING ASYLUM

WEDDING AND RECEPTION ast Evening-Marriage of Two Well Knows

Among the pleasant events of this sea-son must be noted the wedding of Mr. fames H. Riddle, Jr., and Miss Amelia Burdatts, which occurred last evening, and the reception that followed. The mar the reception that followed. The marriage ceremony was celebrated about 8 o'clock at St. John's German Methodist church on Market street. The edifice was crowded to overflowing by the many friends of the bride and groom. The bridal party entered in the following order: Flora Morgan and Mollie Schwertfeger, two little misses dressed in white with flowers. Mr. George Truschel and Miss Lizzie Egerler, and Mr. Charles E. Zine and Miss Nora Baker, of Bellaire. These attendants entered by the centre sliels while the groom, Baker, of Bellaire. These attendants entered by the centre sials while the groom, on the arm of Rev. Mr. Uffert, the pastor, advanced up one of the side siales, as the bride, on the arm of her father, Mr. Oscar Burdatts, came up the other side siale. The parties met at the altar and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Uffert. Immediately after the wedding party was driven to the Arion club house, where the friends of both parties followed. A reception was held in the pariors, where congratulations were shewered upon the happy pair, and this was followed by a dance in the ball room, which was opened by a grand march, directed by Mr. Fred Schwertieger, and in which nearly all took part, keeping step to the music of Mendelsation's Wedding March, played by the Opera House Orchestra. The assembly was a gay and notable one, embracing nearly all the prominent German citizens of the city and their families, in addition to the young people, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Riddle. During the evening an elegant supper was served in the dining room.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. Burdatts, a well known member of the Reymann Brewing Company. She is a very charming young lady with a long list of admirers. THE LABELLE GLASS WORKS. Annual Election-To Start at Once-Bridge

On Tuesday last the stockholders of the La Belle Glass works elected E. P. Rhodes, J. M. Brown, R. K. Giffen, F. C. Robin son, David Brown, Louis Cook and S. C. Dunlevy, directors. Yesterday the Board of Directors met and unanimously elected S. C. Dunlevy President and

Manager, Addison Thompson, bookkeeper, T. O. Musten, of Pittsburgh, western salesman, and R. S. Plonman, New York salesman, and k. S. Flohman, New 1972 salesman. The pots at the La Belle Glass works are set and fires will be lighted next Monday. After a severe struggle it starts off under the most favorable promises of success. Its management is talented and wavefice.

Progressive suchre parties seem to be in the increase in town. Abe Pickard, who was hurt on th Hempfield recently, has been brought Col. Hill, in company with two other parties, in a two-horse sleigh, went out to Lloydsville yesterday.

The ice business is brisk on the creek, and the mode of cutting and putting up the crystal attracts attention.

Some farmers residing out four or five miles, on the hills, report the weather not so cold as here at Bridgeport. Some of the country roads near Pasco, Belmont county, are impassable on ac-count of the heavy snow-drifts.

The meetings in the churches nightly during the week are being well attended and much interest is manifested. The Cleveland & Pittsburgh trains are running regularly since the track has been cleared of the heavy snow-drifts.

A large force of hands employed to oper up the Cadis pike, succeeded yesterday in clearing it sufficiently to admit of travel. Jackson Baggs, the venerable lumber man, fell on the street and seriously in jured himself. His age and other in firmities make his case the more painful All differences between the miners and the Standard and Atna mills having been amicably adjusted the works will go on promptly. The Æina starts up on Mon-day next.

The Belmont County Teachers's Association will meet in the Kirkwood school building, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The citizans of Bridgeport and vicinity are invited to attend.

W. Hollister, the live insurance agent, left yesterday for his temporary head-quarters, Youngstown, Ohlo, where his wife isspending the winter with their only child, Rev. Charles Hollister. A Mrs. Moore, of West Wheeling, at the funeral of Mrs. Wright on Thursday, became so chilled that she was suddenly stricken with a terrible chill, followed by unconsciousness, and is reported to be very ill.

A new bell has been placed in the botom school house. Mr. Tom. Oldham had his nose frozen Vednesday night. Mr. Robert Turner has arrived home on business trip from Cincinnati.

Tramps are too numerous to mention All spare room in the mills is occupied. Work on the steel plant has been de layed for several days on account of the cold weather. Simpo Arnett arrived in town yesterday and will take the position of greaser and water carrier. The cold weather is hard upon the la oring men, several having had their ears nd feet frozen.

Train No. 47, on the Cleveland & Pitts-burgh road, was two hours late yesterday, lelaying all the trains. Mr. Carl Ameler, superintendent of the aughlin and Junction Steel Company, as returned from Pittaburgh. The new Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St

Louis bridge is about completed and is a masterly piece of work, and reflects much iredit on the part of the contractors. Mr. De Deken, chemist at the Edgar Thompson blast furnace, Braddocks, Fa., visited the Laughlin and Junction Steel Company. He is the guest of Mr. George Dean,

The town authorities Wednesday, made an effort and cleaned away most of the drift left by the high water on the county road, which has made that road impacable for traveless for the last forhight. One can now get through to Steubenville by carriage as well as by rail.
